Karleen Tauszik has 11 published children's books to her credit, including the "Maximum Magic" trilogy. But when she heard that over half of all working American's are unhappy in their jobs she wrote her latest roadmap to success for kids called, "When I Grow Up I Want to Be..." (subtitled)

"The Annual Career Possibility Journal for Kids"

Author Barbara J. Winter says, "Karleen Tauszik has created a brilliant tool for discovering superpowers."

This journal provides a way for kids to remember and record their talents, achievements, preferences and passions, enabling better career decisions when they grow up.

When Claire Ohlsson Geheb opened an old suitcase that had been closed since 1947, she found herself transported into a world of high adventure, passion and romance few knew existed.

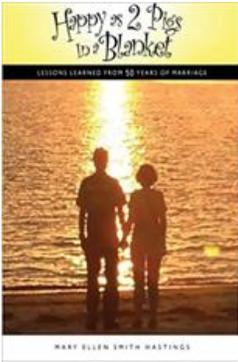

Her stepfather "Willy" had left Germany after WW I seeking his fortune in such far flung arenas as Brazil, Mexico and finally the U.S. But the family he left behind were caught up in Nazi Germany and World War 2.

"Dear Willy" is a rich legacy of photos, letters, loves, loss, and finally a triumph of the heart.

Claire only has ten minutes to share three generations of courage, hope and faith – but we are guessing you will want to know her (and Willy's book) long after the evening has ended!

Steven LaVelle has appeared on The Joan Rivers Show, Connie Chung’s Eye to Eye and over 100 other radio and television talk shows.

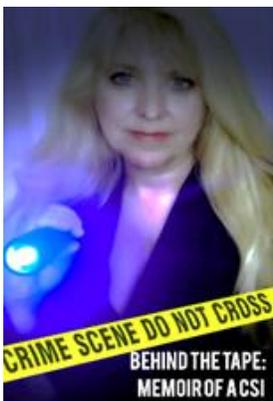

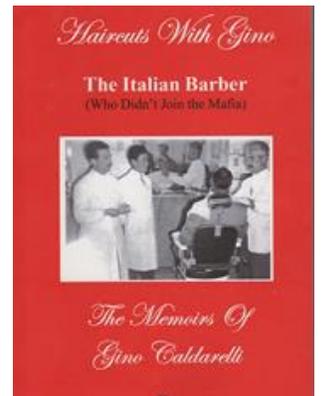

But this book isn’t about him – it is about the remarkable Gino the Not Mafia Barber.

While Steven sat in the barber’s chair, Gino told his life’s story. How an ordinary guy married into a mafia family and became the barber for mafia enforcers, dons and assorted “wise guys.” They wanted him to join them – he didn’t want to. Then things got interesting!

Steven will share just one funny anecdote from “Haircuts With Gino” that occurred when “Crazy Red” an “alleged” hit man gave the rest you will have to read for yourself
